Adoption Virus - Genetic Attraction - The year I loved my Sister: The year I loved my Sister Katharina Liebhauser

Written in two languages ENGLISH Story and GERMAN Communications

Adoption Virus is the third book in the series titled The year I loved my Sister from the author Katharina Liebhauser.

You already learned from the first two books Pulling the Umbilical Cord and Looking in the Mirror how Katharina and Coco have started to bond with each other. How their brains were affected as babies (Pulling the Umbilical Cord – The Beginning and Looking in the Mirror – Childhood Comparison) and the reason why, through the attachment theory and the bond theory, they need to be with each other (Looking in the Mirror-bey is not bye). I presented what the attachment “Bond” is with supported writings from the doctors. I will further explain the next stages of the attachment in Adoption Virus and you can begin to explore what the Genetic Attraction is and why I think that it is a miRNA chemical release and why I call it a “Flick of a Switch”.

We start our journey off with the second 10-day visit as Katharina leaves California and fly’s to Karlsruhe Germany. As in Looking in the Mirror Coco and Katharina spend their “nights on the couch” and days together. I will explain from what I have read what the psychological connection is and expand on the “self-identity” issues that we explored in Pulling the Umbilical Cord and Looking in the Mirror to present the effects of how the miRNA are possibly effecting Katharina and Coco. How their sexual desire for each other is now growing after the “Flick of a Switch” that they both experienced in Looking in the Mirror. Katharina and Coco now spend their time together on this 10 Day exploring each other’s emotional and sexual needs as they progress closer to their Adoption Taboo Love.

After the 10 day visit you will read in their communications how Coco feels shame, but later changes her mind, How the Adoption Virus is affecting each other’s lives. How Katharina tries to explain what was happening to the two of them and why. She will present, what she has now learned and why she thinks that the miRNA has created a hormonal psychological change in their bodies. Why she is calling it a “flick of the switch” Why through the self-identification that the Adoption Taboo love occurs through using Freud and the “Child” role to show how the Adoption Virus can take hold so aggressively that leads them to a Adoption Genetic Affair and the Genetic Sexuelle Attraction.
