“Read! In the name of your Lord who created,
Created man from a clot that clings,
Read! And your Lord is the most generous,
He who taught by the pen,
Taught man that which He knew not.”

The five lines above represent the first five verses of the Qur’an. The entire Islamic faith and the lives of each adherent are based on this sacred book which Muslims—such as yourself—believe to be the precise word of Allah. Islam is an unparalleled religion with unique beliefs, practices, and rituals that sets it apart from other great faiths of the world. It is believed that Islam is the natural religion of mankind. Since the birth of Creation, Allah had planned for Islam to be the vessel in which mankind would find peace and true happiness. Islam is characterized by the complete submission to Allah. A true Muslim acknowledges that Allah is the one and only God who is transcendent, and that Muhammad is His messenger. This recognition is referred to as Shahada—one of the foremost pillars of Islam. The Islamic faith is also based on prayer, fasting, purification, and pilgrimage. Articles of faith include revelations, resurrection, and predestination. Islam is a web of concepts and principles that is beautiful in its complexity.
