Cassie has endured a debilitating accident that has left her with traumatic memory loss. The only person that she can remember is her son, Travis. Although she has no memories of her life past the accident, she knew that she was a loving mother to her son and that mattered for something.

Travis is overly protective of his mother. She has been through a lot and he wants to make sure that she is safe and that she is not being taken advantage of by anyone, and that includes family. With Cassie not feeling the support of love of her family, other than her son, she closes herself off to the world.

A chance meeting at the grocery store introduces her to Brian, a handsome medical student who is half her age. She is not sure what she could possibly have in common with the man that considers himself an eternal bachelor. Especially since Brian is close in age to her son Travis.

When Cassie finds herself falling for Brian, she is left wondering if he feels the same or if he is just in it for the good sex and the stimulating company. Can she find it in her to ask him if their relationship is simply a friends with benefits deal or if Brian could possibly see her as more than just friends?
