Skillfully blending life's dark and light moments, this collection of six short stories illuminates the results of choosing one of life's paths over another. Each story is a modern-day remix of powerful Bible parables, serving as a reminder two thousand years later that the wisdom in the Bible still applies today.

In "Judgment Day," John confronts a major decision when he must choose between what his fiancée says is right and what his political allies need him to do.

In "The Good Sport," angry fans gravely hurt Kyle, and when even his friends aren't there for him, he begins to wonder if anyone will help.

In "One in a Hundred," public school teacher Natalie introduces religion to a grieving student and is shocked at how poorly her good intentions are received.

In "The Bad Cop," alcoholic Officer Gomez suspects a respected religion professor of a crime, but will his own checkered past hinder him from doing his job?

In "Debt Forgiveness," Zack is a savvy, financial guru that will stop at nothing to prove a childhood bully wrong.

In "The Happy Dishwasher" Alex abruptly leaves the family business on bad terms and wonders if his father will ever forgive him.
